All are invited

Justice Kurup, author of several landmark public interest judgements which has been universally hailed, including the classic and path breaking verdict banning smoking in public places is the recipient of many honours and awards - Regional, National and International - for his outstanding contributions in the field of Tobacco Control, Public Health, Human Rights, Environment etc.

Born in N. Parur (1939) Kerala, India, Justice Kurup had his primary education at St. Thomas High School, Keezhillam and RMHS, Vadavucode. He did his pre-university at the Nirmala College, Muvatupuzha and graduated in Chemistry from the Sacred Heart College, Thevara (1961) and took his Law Degree from the Govt. Law College, Ernakulam (1963) and Post Graduation in Constitutional Law, Administrative Law and International Law from the University Law Centre, Ernakulam. He started practice in 1964 under the late Panampilly Govinda Menon former Chief Minister and Union Cabinet Minister and later joined Menon and Pai, a leading lawyers' firm in India. In recognition of his talents he was appointed as senior counsel for the State and counsel for the Central Government simultaneously in the High Court of Kerala. He also served as part-time professor of law in the Govt. Law College Ernakulam. His elevation to the Kerala High Court Bench in 1992, witnessed judicial activism at its pinnacle culminating in the landmark and historic verdict that he wrote for the Division Bench banning smoking in public places. He demitted office from the Madras High Court on 12th December 2001 after a stint there as Acting Chief Justice. After retirement, the Government of Kerala asked him to probe into the Kumarakom Boat Accident which he completed in a record time of seven months and submitted the report to Government touching all aspect of the mishap. Between 2007-2008, he was the Chairman, National Wage Board for Print Media New Delhi.

He became internationally famous as a cult figure in the crusade against tobacco in the light of the landmark judgment that he wrote for the Division Bench of the High Court of Kerala banning smoking in public places.

48. 'Observance of World Wet lands Day' by Department of Zoology
06.02.2019

04-February 2019

Dear Sir/ Madam,

World Wetlands Day is celebrated every year to raise global awareness about the value of wetlands for humanity and planet. The international theme for World Wetlands Day 2019 is 'Wetlands and Climate Change'. The theme highlights the importance of healthy and intact wetlands in developing an effective strategy for mitigating and adapting to the effects of climate change. Wetlands such as swamps, marshes and mangroves help us cope with global warming. They function as natural and extremely efficient carbon sinks and act as buffers for climate catastrophes that help communities to be resilient against the immediate impact of climate change. However, these fragile environments are threatened by human activities. This approach is to be changed to achieve over arching global climate change mitigation goals.

In this context, Department of Zoology organises various events such as invited talk, film shows and field trip during February 6th-8th, 2019 to raise the awareness among people the importance and value of wetlands. We solicit your esteemed presence.
