Hello!

T S Eliot borrowed from Dante and used the phrase Il Miglior Fabbro (“the better craftsman”) when he dedicated The Waste Land to Ezra Pound. The Department of English endeavours to borrow the know-how and experience of the resource persons to enhance the craftsmanship of our students, as part of the professional capacity building initiative for postgraduate students of Humanities.

The first of this series of workshops brings together journalists from print and digital media to offer a working knowledge of the profession, its scope, challenges, and skillset required to succeed.

Wish you all a fruitful session.
